

How to Submit an Access Request to the Research Access Centre (RAC)

Before submitting a request for access to the CAR, you must visit the CAR website and complete a feasibility form so that a preliminary assessment of your request and the required documents can be carried out.

Submit Your Project to the CREB

Step 1

Submit Your Project to the Central Research Ethics Board (CREB) designated by the Health Minister

To obtain access authorization from the RAC, you must have obtained a favorable assessment from the Central Research Ethics Board (CREB).

To facilitate the evaluation of your application, please ensure that your protocol outlines the activities related to the research project by indicating the following, among other information: purpose, information required to that end, and matching of such information being considered.

Submit the Access Request to RAC

Step 2

Submit the Access Request to the Research Access Centre (RAC)

Once you have received an approval letter from the CREB for your project, you can submit your access request to the RAC.

The access request must namely include the following:

- Your research study protocol
- CREB approval letter
- PIA form
- PIA assessment report
- Any other documents specifying the nature of your request and the research project

Sign Access Agreement

Step 3

Sign Access Agreement

Once your access request has been approved by RAC, you must sign an access agreement so that RAC can obtain and send you the authorized data and/or analysis results in response to your access request.
